HEGGEDAL GUILTY OF RAPE - 20 YEAR OLD BLAIRMORE WOMAN

A 20-year-old Blairmore, Alberta woman broke down and cried under cross examination Monday as she described how she ran away from a car after she had had sexual intercourse with a man in the early morning of April 6 near Cranbrook.

The woman, who testified for about two-and-a-half hours, was the first witness in the trial of Kenneth Lloyd Heggedal, of Cranbrook, charged with rape.

At the beginning of the trial, defence counsel Mickey Moran made a submission of fact that "the accused admits having sexual intercourse with (the woman) on April 6, 1971, in the motor vehicle shown in exhibit 5 at a place near Cranbrook, shown in exhibits 3 and 4."

Mr. Justice D.R. Verchere of Vancouver told the all-male Supreme court jury that "it is no crime for a man to have sexual intercourse with a woman even if that woman is not his wife."

"What is a crime is sexual intercourse with a woman who is not his wife, without her consent," he said.

"Consequently, the issue that will arise as you can see by the admission is this vital issue of consent," he said.

The woman testified that she arrived in Cranbrook about midnight April 5, telephoned her roommates in Lethbridge, then left the bus depot because "there were a lot of men around I didn't like the situation," and started walking towards motels.

She said she was picked up by Heggedal and another man, Kenneth Arthur Ruddram, and was driven to Mayook Road, where Heggedal, who was driving, drove off the road.

She said that Heggedal told her to take off all her clothes. She refused, and he told her he would beat her or kill her.

The woman testified that she assisted Heggedal to undress her. "I was scared," she said. "I thought he meant business — what he said before."

She said that Heggedal had intercourse with her.

She then convinced him to let her out of the car, she said, because she was clad only in her coat and socks. When she got out of the car, she ran to Highway 3, hid until Heggedal's car left, then ran down the middle of the highway towards Cranbrook.

"I just wanted to get out of that car," she continually testified, crying under cross-examination, as she repeated the statement.

Thomas Kucera, Fernie, said he saw the woman running in the middle of the highway, waving her arms at his car.

She said "please let me in the car — I'm freezing — I just got raped — they took all my clothes," he testified. "She was crying."

Ruddram, of Bull River, testified he was with Heggedal when they picked up the woman and went to Mayook Road.

He said they had spent the afternoon and evening drinking in beer parlors in Cranbrook.

"She said she didn't like the idea of getting in a car with two men," he testified. "I believe it was true."

Ruddram said Heggedal threatened the woman, choked her, and "kept on threatening her. He said the woman was 'screaming and hollering and fighting him off,' but that Heggedal had intercourse with her. He said he did not watch the intercourse."

"I never done nothing," he said, when asked what he had done when the woman tried to get out of the car.

"I believe she was frightened to death," he said.

Kenneth Lloyd Heggedal of Cranbrook was convicted Tuesday on a charge of rape after an all-male supreme court jury deliberated for almost an hour and 20 minutes.

Heggedal's mother and father were openly in court after the jury announced their verdict.

Mr. Justice Verchere ordered a pre-sentence report to be completed by Friday morning.

Heggedal was charged with raping a 20-year-old Blairmore, Alta., woman in the early hours of April 6, on a sidetrack near Cranbrook.

Four witnesses testified in the trial — the woman; Kenneth Arthur Ruddram of Bull River, a passenger in the car in which the rape occurred; Thomas Kucera, Fernie, who picked the woman up on the highway and drove her to the Cranbrook RCMP; and Const. M. E. Tolliver, of Cranbrook, who found two suitcases, a purse, and a boot belonging to the woman after they had been thrown in to the Bull River.

Ruddram testified that he was in the front seat of Heggedal's car when Heggedal got into the back seat of the car and forced the woman to have intercourse.

Asked by crown counsel Douglas Wetmore of Trail why he did nothing to stop the struggle in the back seat, Ruddram replied "I was scared, very scared — scared of Ken — because of his state — the way he was carrying on."

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Mickey Moran of Castlegar, Ruddram said he was afraid "because I know how Ken can handle himself."

"I knew if I would have got out and she would have got out, there would have been trouble for sure," he told Mr. Moran.

Ruddram said under cross-examination that he kept changing the volume of the car's stereo tape deck during the half-hour Heggedal was in the back seat with the woman "cause I got disgusted and didn't want to hear," but turned it down "cause I was tired of hearing the same songs over again."

Ruddram said that to stay or leave involved "danger both ways."

"I figured I would be better off right there," he said.

"We live in a permissive society," said Mr. Wetmore, "but the law protects the good and the bad. Whatever shortcomings you might find she had, she is still protected."

Mr. Moran characterized part of the woman's testimony as "a cock and bull story."

Mr. Wetmore spoke for 35 minutes to the jury.

Mr. Justice Verchere spoke to the jury for about an hour, recalling the trial for another 10 minutes to clarify a point in his charges raised by both counsels.

Kenneth Lloyd Heggedal, 21, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on a charge of rape Friday morning.

"The fact that hitch-hiking is a foolhardy and dangerous thing for young women to do, especially at night, does nothing to alleviate the seriousness of the act," said Mr. Justice Verchere.

Letters to the Editor

MAKES AN APPEAL

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal
Coleman, Alberta

Dear Sir:

I would like to make an appeal to the people of Coleman about the upcoming vote on the swimming pool. The appeal is a sincere request for a rational evaluation of the pros and cons of the proposed swimming pool rather than an emotional one.

The recent petition circulated asking for a vote on the pool was in many cases accompanied by false information and was otherwise misrepresented in an attempt to gain signatures. Before anyone casts their vote on June 29, I hope they will know the FACTS and with these in mind make their decision. The best source of factual information for those who are interested can be obtained from the recreation director's office.

Those who are opposed to the pool have based their opposition on three main points and these are cost, site and the fact that the pool proposed will not be covered. I have been involved in the pool project through the Recreation Board for two years now and though my ideas are not representative of those of all board members they do represent those of the majority of the members.

The cost of the pool to the people of Coleman will be approximately fourteen thousand dollars for construction plus about one quarter of the operating deficit. The fourteen thousand dollars will not be a major item as this loan financed over twenty years and repaid by about seven hundred taxpayers would average out to less than year including interest.

The operating and maintenance costs are projected to be almost negligible for the first five years, (based on experiences in other towns with pools and projected usage). This will increase the cost over the years to an average of four dollars per year. All of the Pass towns voted for the new high school in Coleman from the sale of utilities to the new school will pay for all of Coleman's pool debt.

The site of the proposed pool is another issue that causes some opposition. It must be apparent to everyone that every time a Pass project is proposed, site has been an issue. An independent consulting firm was paid a fee of about two thousand dollars to choose a site and the Blairmore armories site as first choice was based on some reasonable points. The main reasons being that it was centrally located both geographically and as the population centre. It was easily accessible and allowed plenty of area for parking.

The only other site that was seriously considered and was the second choice of the consultants was the high school site. An economic advantage that might have been gained by the high school is lost now that the school is built and provision has not been made in its plan to add a pool. An open air pool at the school has no real advantage if it is only to be used during the months of July and August when the school is closed anyway. A covered pool at the school will be discussed later.

I don't think that anyone will disagree that the armories site is the best location Blairmore has to offer for a pool. If this is so, the only thing left to agree on is why should it be built in Blairmore at all and why not in Coleman? This is where the reason rather than the emotion has to come in.

Most of you who know me know I lived in Coleman for eighteen years and Coleman is still my hometown. I live in Blairmore now and find that the people here are no better or worse than those in Coleman. Many people here harbor the same feelings about Coleman people that some in Coleman feel for Blairmore people. These two nations will come together some day and the sooner it of the people realize it the better. Please, Coleman, do not open the pool because it is being built in Blairmore.

The third point has to do with than an open air pool. I think everyone agrees that an enclosed pool would be ideal. It would be usable for a greater part of the year and because of the weather around here could even get more use in summer. The most serious drawback to an enclosed pool is the capital construction cost. It would cost at least twice as much to build and at least five times as much to operate. Besides that, the operating deficit would start from year one rather than year five or six. Imagine how many people will be swimming in our enclosed pool when it is really cold in winter. Operating costs during this time will not decrease if there is nobody there but will only climb. The City of Calgary is favoring the construction of outdoor pools rather than enclosed pools because they get so much more use per operating day.

In the proposed pool every consideration has been taken to incorporate in the design the possibility of someday enclosing the pool. If the people here could see the possibility of raising the necessary two hundred thousand dollars for an all weather pool it could be enclosed later. It is expected that another recreation grant will be available in about five years. If the people continue to oppose the open air pool, I would suggest that at this time it is an open air pool or no pool at all. The 7½ mill anticipated cost of a covered pool is much more than any of the towns will pay.

These complaints are the ones that have been heard the most. Summarizing them up, I don't think anyone can complain about the cost at approximately four dollars per taxpayer per year. You really haven't much choice in building an open or enclosed pool because of the cost of the latter. And the only other issue is site. On that point I can really say there

Youth Grant For Non-Status Indians

The B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians has received an Opportunity for Youth Grant of $45,000 to conduct a survey of the educational, employment, social and cultural circumstances of non-status Indians who identify with their Indian origin.

Butch Smithman, president of the association, says very little information is now available about non-status Indians. "This information is essential if we are to deal intelligently and effectively with the problems facing our people."

The grant will enable the organization to hire five non-status Indian university students to supervise student survey crews. Altogether, some 60 young people are expected to be involved in this project. They will carry out door-to-door research throughout the province with the help of local chapters of the association.

UNITARY GOVERNMENT FOR PASS DISCUSSED

D. Isbister, Assistant Deputy Minister with the Department of Municipal Affairs was in attendance at the latest meeting of the Crownest Pass Local Government Study Committee. The committee, comprised of representatives from five Pass communities, I.D. As a next step in their investigations, the study group will proceed in analyzing the extent of government services in each municipality and the effectiveness and costs of such services under amalgamation. Sub-committees would be formed among the group to carry out this analysis. Mr. Isbister stated that resource people will be provided by his department. Present (1970) government expenditure as they are required.

CHARGE

Until March 22, 1971, there were only three types of charge cards available to the consumer in Alberta: (1) department stores; (2) oil companies; and (3) the "travel-and-entertainment" card available to businessmen. Now the "Charge" card has been initiated which is a combination of all the charge cards.

Charge is run by four banks: the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Royal Bank, the Toronto-Dominion Bank and the Bank Canadian National.

Anyone may apply for a card, whether he deals with one of the sponsoring banks or not. Applications are judged on the basis of income, employment and general credit rating. A limit is set for each individual based on these factors, and the card holder may not charge beyond this limit e.g. the limit may be $1,000 per year. There is no membership fee and the cardholder has the advantage of consolidating monthly purchases into one bill. Over 250 different kinds of goods or services may be purchased using the card.

When making a purchase, the cardholder merely presents his charge card and signs for his purchase. The merchant is paid by Charge at the end of the month, and the cardholder is sent one bill for all the purchases made in that month. No service or interest charge is added if the cardholder pays his account within 25 days of receiving his bill. The consumer has the option of paying his total account or he may pay it in part. If he chooses the extended payments option, he may pay as little as 10% of the balance, or $10 if the balance is less than $100. The rest is carried over as a loan and interest is charged on the unpaid balance at 1 1/4% per month (18% per year).

Besides charging goods and services, a cardholder may obtain cash advances by going to one of the sponsoring banks and presenting his card. Interest at 1 1/4% per month is charged on the type of the transaction on this type of "loan". All Charge transactions are separate from the cardholder's bank account and will not be subtracted from the account.

The Charge card can also be used in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, where the scheme has been operating for some time. It is also honored by merchants displaying the BankAmericard (USA), Barclaycard (U.K., Ireland, South Africa, Caribbean), Bancamerica (Mexico) and the Sumitomo card (Japan).

This plan was initiated to give the small merchant more of the credit business and to give the banks more of the credit money.

It appears that we are heading towards a credit-orientated society where the response to a cash purchase may well be, "Sorry, if you don't have a credit card, we can't accept your money."

CLEANING HINTS No. 1

I have had several requests lately for information on cleaning different types of metal. As a result, I intend to devote my next few columns to various methods of cleaning different metals.

BRASS
Brass is an alloy of copper and zinc. Two parts of copper usually are used to one part of zinc. Formerly the copper was combined also with tin and other metals. "Brass" from the Italian word branco meaning brass, is used today to identify the ancient alloy of copper and tin.

Tarnished brass is sometimes easier to polish if it is first washed in hot soapsuds. After drying it, remove the tarnish and spots of corrosion by rubbing it thoroughly with a good polish made especially for brass. When it is clean, polish it with a soft flannel cloth or chambray. This will give the brass a bright finish. If a soft finish is desired, substitute for the polish a thin paste made by mixing rottenstone and linseed oil. Wipe off excess oil and polish with a clean cloth. Rub antique brass with lemon (mineral) oil and polish it softly.

A piece of lemon dipped in salt, or hot vinegar and salt, will remove corrosion from brass. This is an old-fashioned method but one that can be adapted profitably to small ornaments or miniatures that are difficult to clean. Provided they are not decorated with materials that hot water will damage, they can be boiled in water containing salt and vinegar. Or you can use washing soda in the same way. Most of the corrosion will be removed, and you can then finish with brass polish.

Ken Kirk got a Commerce Bankplan loan and turned an old friend into a passing acquaintance.

Over the past few years Ken had gotten to know Harry,
his neighbourhood mechanic, pretty well.

In fact, too well.
Because Ken had spent a small fortune at Harry's garage to keep his old car going.

Finally, with the help of another large repair estimate, Harry convinced Ken to buy a new car.

And we took it from there.
First Ken got a Commerce
Bankplan loan. One designed with a repayment plan to fit his own personal situation.

That's why we call it a
Bankplan loan.

And we're the only time
Ken saw Harry is to buy a tank of gas.

When you need a new car, a truck or a trailer, ask about your own customized
Bankplan loan.

It's none of the many ways we use to do more for

The Canadian Nose Count

Back in 1666 Quebec Intendant Jean Talon began a census of New France, listing by age, sex, marital status and occupation his 3,215 Frenchmen.

As a result Canada is the only country in the world to have a statistical profile of development since the first settlement was established.

Every census year the information requested by the D.B.S. increases until this year it will ask how many Canadians own freezers and how each household disposes of sewage.

In these days of inflation and an effort to cut costs, the government will spend $35 million public dollars on the exercise which will employ 42,000 enumerators supervised by 2,000 commissioners, each group handing out six million population questionnaires and 400,000 agriculture questionnaires. In the past the DBS enumerators filled out the forms - in 1971, by law each Canadian family has to fill out their own form.

The 1971 census will survey 500,000 businesses and even the far far north will feel the Trudeau touch as snowmobiles, chartered boats and aircraft will call on isolated northern and coastal communities in an effort to make a thorough round-up of the nation's statistics.

We have often remarked on the hypocrisy of the prime minister, once in anger said to Canadian newsmen "... the state has no business in the bedrooms of the nation" - but in spite of this, you are asked how many bedrooms your home contains?

Recipients will have to reveal details of their earning, education, how many hours they worked the previous week and how much their house would bring at present day market prices. The final insult is to ask what language is used most often in your home.

Some years ago we had an opportunity of hearing from a Hebrew about the questionnaire that Jews in Nazi Germany were required to fill out prior to the war.

If our memory serves us correctly, except for the racial and nationality portion, the 1971 Canadian census form is similarly inquisitive.

Many of the private activities and incomes information of families are being forced out of Canadians by legislation backed up by law, with fines or imprisonment for those failing to do so.

According to the government, all information will be microfilmed and to prevent any abuse of this information about individuals the microfilm will be kept in strict security where neither the police or government agencies have access to it.

To us this is just so much "tripe" as the D.B.S. is a government agency. As we have often said - slowly but surely governments on all levels are chiseling away at our basic freedom, rights and privileges until we will become nothing but a nation of vegetables... our lives dictated by French Canadian opportunists with socialist philosophies.

In the 1961 census three Canadians wrote on their census papers "none of your damned business" and were fined for refusing to co-operate but since 1666 no one has been imprisoned.

And if you wish to be lulled and conned into further false security possibly the enlightened remarks of Director W. D. Porter, "that once people see the form they realize how harmless it is..." would be an insult to your intelligence.

For our part Mr. Porter's remarks are typical government hog-wash to justify his position as a director of the census division. Under these conditions - who wants to be counted?

Word From The Distant Past

The recent trip of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to Russia reminds us of two socialist leaders with countries having similar problems. And from Lenin we quote "... and then the peasants, suffering from rising unemployment coupled with higher prices and unfair taxes ... revolted". Maybe Communist Party Boss Leonid Brezhnev and Pierre Trudeau had an opportunity of comparing notes.

OTTAWA REPORTS

By ALLEN SULATYCKY, MP
Rocky Mountain

What will be the results of Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to the USSR?

Many are attempting to answer that question. There is, however, little agreement. Political opponents of the Prime Minister see a great variety of negative ramifications while his supporters are declaring it the start of greater things for Canada.

Anyone who positively pronounces the value of the trip is doing little more than guessing. Any benefits which may accrue to Canada will not become fully evident for some time to come.

One facet of the Prime Minister's latest foreign trip which has not received a great deal of attention is the new trade potential which exists between Canada and the USSR. Canada must always be concerned about insuring the greatest possible export markets for herself. We are, after all, the world's greatest traders on a per capita basis.

Canadians, as a whole, rely more on export sales than any other people in the world. Our export trade is only half as large as the United States but, of course, our southern neighbour has ten times our population. The Japanese have exports which exceed ours by only 10 per cent while having five hundred per cent more population than we do.

In circumstances such as these, it would be foolhardy for Canada to ignore trade possibilities wherever they may be developed. This is particularly so under current conditions when groups of countries are banding together to form common trade blocks thereby making it difficult for some of our imports to penetrate these areas.

The best example of this development is the current negotiation by Britain to enter the European economic community which now consists of West Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg. If Britain and other countries are successful in entering the common market it will certainly have the effect of reducing our exports to the new members of the EEC.

Given all the factors of world trade, it makes good sense for Canada to seek closer relations with nations containing a quarter of a billion people and nations which the Prime Minister was able to announce on his return from Russia was an agreement by the Russians that whenever they required wheat they would come first to Canada as a preferred source of supply. It's perhaps more than coincidental that only a matter of days after the conclusion of the Prime Minister's trip the Honourable Otto Lang, Minister Responsible for the Wheat Board, announced that Russia has agreed to take almost two hundred and fifty million dollars worth of Canadian wheat.

Aside from the immediate tangible evidence, it will be years before sufficient facts are known to make an accurate analysis of the value to Canada of the Russian trip.

A Sober Side To June's Delight

June is one of the happiest months before you get your lawn-mower of the year in Canada. Or it mow-er overhauled.

And there's all that young life. June was a happy month for my mother, more years ago than it is decent to talk about. She proudly bore her third son, me. But what she got was a sickly whelp who cried for two years without stopping and barely survived every infant's ailment there was in those days.

There's all that anticipation. But the boat owner discovers that the rats have been at his sails, or the termite at his hull, or his motor has developed a perforated ulcer. And the golfer swings too hard on his first day out, slips a disc and is out for the summer.

To be sure, school is nearly out. But June is pure hell for both teacher and student. For the teacher it is a scramble of final reviews, an avalanche of evaluation, a surfeit of statistics. Fair enough. He's paid for it. But he might as well be teaching a couple of cords of wood. The bodies are there, but the minds and spirits have fled through the open windows into the musky June air.

It's even worse for the student. There's the old talking about poetry when the greatest poetry in the world is taking place outside that stifling rectangular prison. The blood stirs, the limbs go languorous, the eyes go glazy and that retarded adult up front might as well be talking to himself in Swahili.

As for those beautiful marriages, conceived in heaven, and tabled for June. If I had any statistics, I'd say that statistics show that fifty per cent of them will end in a life of quiet desperation, thirty per cent of them will be unbearable, five per cent will be impossible, five per cent unspeakable. The rest will wind up having their sixtieth anniversary pictures in the local paper.

I'm not being cynical about June. I wouldn't miss it for anything. I am merely, as usual, presenting the facts.

is not much choice either. If the pool is not built as proposed, there will probably be no pool at all for many years to come.

The choice then boils down to, do you want a pool at all or don't you. The adults will not use the pool much but will be used by our children and grandchildren. With these points in mind make your decision.

United Church Seeks Required Training Before Marriage

The Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada has announced that pre-marital counselling should be a condition for obtaining a marriage licence.

A request that such a condition be spelled out in an altered marriage act is made in a four-point resolution approved at the conference's annual meeting in Vancouver.

It asks the health minister to clarify the specific rights, privileges and responsibilities of clergy men and marriage commissioners. It asks that establishment of family counselling services on an inter-provincial basis be the major priority assigned to the provinces' preventive social service bureau. Such services should include both pre-marital and marital counselling.

Local Students Shine In Track Meet Debut

May 28th at Lethbridge realized the first efforts of the Crownstee Consolidated School track team. This is the first year that the track and field team has been in existence in school competitions and they made a fine showing.

First was achieved by Michael Edger in the 400-yard sprint, "let" by E. Proc in the discus throw and one-mile run. The boys were also at the 220-yard dash and in the 220-yard dash won by George Mestinsk in the discus throw. Randy Schender competed in discus and shot, Brad Harper in the 100-yard dash, and Bob Morrow in the 220-yard dash.

First and second place winners proceeded to the provincial finals.
